

Usefulness. Prov 24.

When Solomon commenced to write,
Some guidelines for mankind,
Usefulness was near the top,
Of things he had in mind.
For instance he had little time,
For those who don't produce,
For they were wasting God's great gift,
Time given them, not used.

The sluggard, Solomon declared,
Can never find the time,
To do the necessary chores,
So they get left behind.
A little slumber, too much sleep,
Is really all it takes,
For someone with potential, great
A useful life forsake.

The motivation and the drive,
They had in former days,
Dreams and plans of long ago,
"Have disappeared," They say.
The energy to get things done,
In this world make their mark,
Has been replaced by idleness,
Their vehicle in PARK.

Time, precious time is flying by,
So soon it will be past,
The dreams and plans neglected,
For you have gone at last.
Then suddenly we realize,
Accounting time is near,
For harvest time comes to us all,
Will there be joy or fear?
